THEME TONIGHT: Ignore the Echo Chamber

No hard evidence of Russian involvement

- Make a whole lot of Manafort & Stone – will not connect to Trump – make whole lot of noise
- David Brock heart attack – covert forces are moving in to stop the swarm – makes sense because country can not afford this expensive and ugly an echo chamber
If he does not heed the warning, likely dead within a year. This whole process could get much more violent

Now hard evidence that trump was surveillance – Nunes conference call.

Trump deserves enormous credit for refusing to be gaslighted and standing up full guns until the documentation started to dribble in.

Expect some of the monitoring turned out to be friendly. Intelligence agencies trying to figure out who to support. As he learned and improved throughout the campaign, he won some support.

This is an exceptionally important discussion only the top of the iceberg. Digital systems are being used not just for surveillance but for manipulation

America has been exhausted by it, so Trump is taking a hit in the polls.

Meantime, most of the coverage is irrelevant drivel. The Russia allegations to date are a complete waste of your time. The fact that our digital systems have no integrity is one of the most important issues before us. Without privacy, we have not way to build human or financial equity.

Zero integrity digital systems is the descent into slavery. So this is a fight worth having. Be glad the President is having it and refusing to back down because it is hard on his polling numbers.

Republicans postponed the health care vote – did not have the votes

Their problem is we can not afford insurance - need the money for health care

Can not afford a population with bad habits who are digesting GMOs, fluouride, vaccines, aluminum and barium from spraying

Can not afford a pharmaceutical industry not subject to market force

Bad habits in corporations and general population – all round

Problem is outside of Washington's control – need real political support to do what needs to be done.

Can't solve problem with money - $50 trillion gone in the financial coup

Biggest problem with the Budget - $20 trillion debt on the table – all the missing money and bailouts off the table.

Trump demands Republicans vote on health care Friday or Obamacare stays

Abandoning negotiations, President Donald Trump on Thursday demanded a make-or-break vote on health care legislation in the House, threatening to leave Obamacare in place and move on to other issues if Friday's vote fails.

Knows must get tax reform done before recess in August

Will move to the next thing he wants done.

Video from Steve Pzesnick strongly critical of budget blueprint – should move faster to revolutionize the military and intelligence scope and economics – excellent comments will post.

Oh No – turns out Gorsuch – working for Gonzales stinker on helping the CIA initiate torture network

Nuts – they keep turning up like bad pennies – Gorelick, Dina Powell

Panhandle – third worst fire in Texas history

Rancher there sent reports and gave me permission to post so you would get a feel, recommending the WRCA relief fund was a great way to help

Ochilltree, Roberts, Hemphill and Lipscomb Counties, Texas
Panhandle Fire Report.

I still contend our Popsicle index approaches 100%!!

The WRCA is a great choice for donations. Eleven years ago, an even larger fire swept the Panhandle. That fire burned 4000+ acres and 16 miles of fence at our Ranch. The WRCA procured massive amounts of reject pipe at a low cost and then provided to the ranchers at about a third of the normal cost of pipe.

Most of the people here do not want a hand out but they sure like a bargain! We used the pipe to build the corners in the fence which had to be rebuilt.

The man where Jane's hay is going kept telling us that he was fine, there were lots of people worse off than him. We went and looked. All of his hay had burned up. All of his grass had burned up. But his cattle survived because they had gotten them on a wheat pasture and it did not burn. And to top it off, he was on a firetruck with my partner fighting fire on a neighbor when his land and hay burned up! Clearly he needs the hay!

Volunteers fought fire for 36 hours straight with no injuries. That in itself is truly a miracle.

Last week as I was returning to the ranch which had burned eleven years ago, the memories flooded back and I remembered how overwhelmed I felt at the time. But as I drove into the headquarters last week, all was well. A small herd of mule deer were grazing north of the house, pronghorn antelope were in front of the house and a herd of aoudad sheep (descendants from imports from the Barbary Coast of Africa) were laying to the south. Cattle will arrive in the next few weeks. With the help of friends and strangers alike, lots of hard work, time and the hand of God, most of the people affected by the recent wildfires will recover.

Thanks for all your help.

And I was able to listen to the firefighters via www.broadcastify.com. They broadcast participating police and fire scanners across the country. As much as you drive across the country, it would allow you to monitor any emergencies and avoid.

And my oil and gas attorney told me about a documentary his son was in. We ordered it in from Amazon and it was great. Unbranded-story of four recent Texas A&M graduates who buy 20 wild mustangs, train them and ride them from the Mexican border to the Canadian border. Interwoven is the story of BLM and their management of the wild horse herds on federal lands. On opposite sides are people who want basically no management of the herds and ranchers who graze the land and want horse herds held constant. Ben Masters was the force behind it. Gave me hope not all 22 year olds are whiners.

Gary Jahnel : 2017 Panhandle Wildfires Gary is one of those people that just brighten your day when he walks in the office. He always has something positive to say or funny to tell you. This past week the fires that revenged our county unfortunately got to Mr. Jahnel's farm. I had called a few times to check in to see if he, his family, and his farm were ok. During one of the calls he said with tension, slight fear and concern, "They are trying to get it out. It's here, but they are trying the best they can." My heart sank. Shear helplessness overcame me and I told him, "It will be ok, call if I can help." Through the hours and days I continued to think about Gary as well as other customers, hoping and praying they made it through. As the smoke and smog settled, the realization of what took place set in. Thousands of acres, cattle and few lives of hard working people had been taken. I contacted Gary again to see if everything was ok. He noted that the houses, barns, and cows were ok. However, the hay, grassland, and some equipment didn't fare as well. As a week went by, life continues. Early morning in the office I hear the doorbell ding and Mr. Jahnel's face brighten our entry. I was overwhelmed to see his smiling face. Through his rough and tired voice filled with emotional and physical exhaustion, we spoke for a while of the week's events and how he had managed. He told me a story that made me proud of agriculture and proud to play a role in it. Gary had lost all of his hay but thankfully none of his cattle. He said he had received a call from a woman in Amarillo who told him, “I heard you lost all of your hay, I am going to bring you some.” Gary had never met this woman or even how she knew they needed hay. He told her about the fires and how he had been helping his neighbor earlier in the day battle fires on their property. The neighbor he was referring to mind you was not the adjacent property. It was someone who was about 15-20 min from where he was located. Gary had a puzzled look on his face when he told me, “She said, that’s not a neighbor.” Gary explained that when you are a farmer or in a small community, anyone within a drive away is a neighbor. I listened with admiration eager to hear how the story continued. He said the woman showed up with all smiles and a load of hay. They spoke for a while and Gary was so grateful for this woman’s generous support. A day or two had gone by and as communication continued the woman made sure to tell Gary, “Let me know if you need anything, we are neighbors now so I am here to help.” With a hitch in my throat I told Gary how amazing that was. Gary and I live a few miles from each other and he and my husband are both involved with volunteer fire departments. I had never felt so grateful to experience moments like this. Moments like this stay with you forever. Moments like this change people for the better. Thank you Gary for sharing this light moment through all the darkness. We are all neighbors.

The few days after the fire, wheeler lipscomb and Hemphill counties sounded like a war zone. People were putting cattle too injured to recover down. People care about their animals or they would not do this for a living as the money is not that great and the work is hard. People lost horses in the fire. A good horse is indispensable in this line of work-a partner in every sense of the word. I should have been dead long ago if not for being mounted on smart horses and them making the decision to get us both home with minimal damage. I have had horses put down to old age but can not imagine losing one in a fire.

John Ericsson of Hank the Cowdog Fame, lost his house and much of his ranch this fire but I heard he had two cows calve during the fire and all survived by taking shelter in a rough canyon. In the 2006 fire much of his ranch burned also.

The 2006 fire was the number one fire in Texas Recorded history and the fire this year was number 3 measured in acres burned.

It is all part of life in the Texas Panhandle. The volunteers will spend the next few months repairing all the equipment tore up in these fires.

I am going to try and send you a copy of the local newspaper. The most liberal person in 4 counties is the editor but they have lots of coverage and pictures to give you some perspective. You can see on the map how close fire came to Higgins when the fire shift happened and turned the fire south.

Counties in this part of texas are 30 miles by 30 miles

The fact that a crisis was fought at the local level first and then moving outward and upward is the takeaway I get. Just like you say "Things work better from the bottom up." County government and local volunteers jumped into action. It was a community or in this case several communities, effort put forth. Firefighters were on the front line but locals gathered up water and food and found the water tanker trucks refilling the fire trucks and the firefighters were fed and watered on the run. Kirk said somebody left seventeen cases of water at their little fire station and gobs (a direct quote) of food. Everybody does what they can to help and it all works. People were helping evacuate those in the line of the fire.

The ag extension service is a dual government agency split between the state and the local community. The area ag extension group out of Amarillo began organizing donations of hay and supplies but the local man was one of the main organizers on site. The amount of hay which arrived within hours of the fire being brought under control is amazing. Within days, other needed supplies began arriving.

Two private helicopters reside in Hemphill County. Both of them were hovering over peoples houses to give them the signal to evacuate. They also both have large canvas buckets on their helicopters and they fought fire relentlessly.

There might have been some forest service planes in the Hemphill county area but I know they were initially at the fire north of Amarillo. State fire fighters came in after a day and a half of firefighting and I think they did the mop up work.

No one was waiting on help from the government. Many stories will never be told because people did the right thing to help their neighbors out and moved on to see where they could be of use next. They did not need a pat on the back for doing good deeds. It is just the way things work here in a crisis.

Rain put it out. Burned 25 miles by 10 miles I am guessing from my easy chair in Amarillo. Will assess our damages tomorrow. Expecting 60 mph winds tomorrow so it might be another wild day. Kirk was there helping firefighters get around on our property so I was getting good Intel.

Same guys fighting this fire as other fire. We need a foot of snow on the level but we did get rain before it got to Oklahoma. Divine intervention

Let's Go to the Movies

In Let's Go to the Movies, I will review Hidden Figures about three brilliant African-American women who worked at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) during the 1950's Space Race and the successful NASA effort to send John Glenn into earth orbit. It is an inspiring, entertaining cinematic depiction of the importance of meritocracy if we wish to achieve excellence, and to accomplish "the impossible."

INTERVIEW

Great turnout, great discussion, lots of links, raw audio up, edited audio by Monday, then transcript

*"In a digital age, data about money is worth more than money" -
Nicholas Negroponte*

By Catherine Austin Fitts

This week on the Solari Report, I will present a live seminar called "Unpacking Your Financial Ecosystem." I will begin at Midnight GMT, 8pm EDT, 7pm CDT, 6pm MDT, 5pm PDT, 8am HKT, 11am AEDT. My presentation will take an hour – questions will add up to another hour, for a total time of up to 2 hours.

I will introduce steps you can take to identify and understand the local, state, corporate and foundation financial flows and assets that impact your finances and local economy. I will focus on US examples. If you are a citizen of another developed country, you should be able to extrapolate information about financial flows and assets within your own national, regional, and municipal jurisdictions.

If you are attending live, make sure you are logged in and able to post in the comment section of this commentary. I would encourage you to post notes, comments, and questions as we proceed.

We will post access information to our webinar URL for subscribers on Thursday morning so make sure to login and check the subscriber links. The audio, referenced links and notes will be included in the subscriber section of this commentary by late Thursday night or Friday.

In Money & Markets this week I will discuss the latest in financial and geopolitical news. Make sure to post or send your questions to Ask Catherine.

Hi Catherine,

Can you ask Rob to explain how the paper market in futures has what the sellers of gold bullion called “naked shorts” when every paper contract has a buyer and a seller?

Will do – we will focus on Interest Rate swaps but will also go into the gold related trading.

It seems the gold bugs, including Franklin Sanders, pretend the paper market is “fake” pricing somehow. I don’t understand this claim.

OK, will go into with Rob – false sales and shorts. Selling gold when you have no gold.

Hopefully you get this question in time.

I see that you link to Martin Armstrong. I often wonder why you have not interviewed him. It would be great if you could interview Martin.

Often disagree – not comfortable – example ESF – accuse people of selling newsletter – ridiculous – Rob Kirby would no more say anything to sell newsletters – cheap shot based on no knowledge. Ignorant and rude.

Don’t believe in black boxes or future prediction – worst mistakes I see come from getting vested in a particular

It seems the two of you had similar experience getting rolled by the Feds. Martin says the bankers manipulate everything picking up pennies on every trade. He said never ever do you have a long term trend changing manipulation.

Disagree - Manipulation of Oil price, strong dollar policy, pump and dump of the housing markets.

In fact, he says often times the bankers are manipulating the price on the upside. Really old stock brokers say of course the markets is manipulated like having your stops run. Don't complain that is the way the world works, accept it.

Disagree – What you think and what you do is important. That kind of hopelessness is mind control. Don't buy it.

Hi Catherine: As one of your new subscribers to the Solari Report, I had opportunity to read the ESF of March 9, 2017 and learned so much information that I never even knew existed—thank you!

Toward the end of the PDF version is this by you:

"Enforce the Constitution. I've been working with a group of people to come up with a list of all the different things that we can do to enforce the Constitution."

So my question is this: How can any of us "enforce the Constitution" when we all are considered "enemies/rebels/belligerents/statutory US citizens" under 50 USC App(5b) as amended by The Emergency Banking Relief Act of March 9, 1933(12 USC 95a)? In addition, how can "we the people" enforce the Constitution when we were never a party to it? The courts have already ruled as such and people are still under the illusion that somehow "we the people" ARE a party to the Constitution. Yes, it is true that we are the posterity beneficiaries to the Constitution, but only the states and the federal government are the actual parties to it. It seems to me that the first step needs to be a change in status from "enemy/belligerent/rebel" as a US citizen to private people again—then as beneficiaries, we can enforce the Constitution. Do you agree? Disagree?

Not a lawyer – "Nobody gives you power, you take it." simply have watched the power of people – intention, time, attention, cash flow. Enough people shift, enforcement is possible. Study changes in culture, consciousness, money....

This is why their efforts at manipulate the field and consciousness are so important.

Hello Catherine. I recently listened to the interview you did with Rob Kirby on the ESF (excellent work, BTW). I am interested in digging deeper into the HUD / NY Fed / ESF connection, focusing on the exploitation and profiteering of the US housing market. I wondered if you could direct me to Solari resources or other writings on that topic or related material. Thank you for your help. Cordially – CR

Hi Catherine

It's one of your fans from the City of London. The City is imploding post-Brexit (intentionally engineered) and seems to be taking my beloved country with it. So I'm off. Been offered a great job in Sydney with a global broker so I'm off to australia on Tuesday.

I know it will be the same old sh@t but at least the weather will be better...

I'll look forward to catching up with Solari and your great YouTube interviews from down under.

Do let me know if you're going to be in Oz any time soon.

Keep being fabulous! And may God watch over you.

Warmest regards

SYDNEY IS SO WONDERFUL – IT IS THE LUCKY COUNTRY – you will have a great time. Curious to know why the Queen was committed to imploding the City.

Hi Solari team, Did you know that Solari.com made it onto the following list from Harvard(?): "False, Misleading, Clickbait-y, and/or Satirical "News" Sources" The reasons were identified in their category labeled "Unknown." Along with some other great sites such as TragedyandHope.com and many others. Keep up the great work. Thanks, Jeremy Sent from my iPhone

Jim:

From what I can tell, Harvard did not make up a list.

In Steve Lendman's article he has a list of sources he describes as reliable that he says in on Harvard's list – however I can find no such list. The Harvard site has a section on "Fake News" – they link to the associate professor from Merrimack College who did make a list. However, that link takes you to a french text – so it is not working.

A search for that list on the Internet produces this list
ew

We were not on the associate professors original list. We are on this list and our type is categorized as "unknown" which is defined as:

Unknown (tag unidentified): Sources that have not yet been analyzed (many of these were suggested by readers/users or are found on other lists and resources). Help us expand our resource by providing us information!

So this gets back to “Fake News” – it looks to me like Harvard or the Harvard Library did not create a list of “fake news” websites and it is highly misleading to attach Harvards name to it – that is a very fake news thing to do.

While I don’t know the associate professor at Merrimack. She is an associate professor of communications and media.

<http://www.merrimack.edu/live/profiles/586-melissa-mish-zimdars>

<http://www.merrimack.edu/index.php>

Here is the project she works on:

<http://www.opensources.co>

Trolling that, Solari.com does not appear on either Credible or NotCredible lists.

If you look at the associate professor’s bio, I think the chance that she or her associates are expert in the covert economy or financial system is small, so I am not sure why we are even thinking or discussing her lists.

If you look at the Credible List it is media that has significant sovereign backing and/or financial resources. So it would appear that rich resources are what get you to credibility in their space. Lord knows resources do help produce a better publication.

This means they are not focused on material omissions. Probably more focused on slip ups like Lendman implying that an official Harvard source made a list.

What will decide all of this is views and subscriptions. Who gets the views and who gets the subscriptions.

Which is why I give priority to NO MATERIAL OMISSIONS and why the good associate professor unknowingly supports so many media sources with investors who start wars and practice pedophilia and make far less typos than me.

REALLY IMPORTANT TO NOT WASTE TIME ON ANY OF THIS – focus on what is real and sources that have no integrity – disclosures from Iran Contra and last housing bubble Harvard Corporation has no integrity – individual professors may – but as a source hopelessly conflicted.

Hello Catherine:

I will definitely be listening to Unpacking Your Community Financial System. I know the city manager wants to start a Citizen Academy and I have volunteered to help so I will have that in mind when I listen to your broadcast.

Just as an update I want you to know the first group of college students completed a day on the job with city code enforcement employees. The students submitted written evaluations of their experience. Their reports were enthusiastic and positive. Some reported observing a city employee advising a resident on ways to repair or maintain their property another student talked about having to help collect an annoying boa constrictor.

The next our local sheriff 's deputy will come for a Q and A with the class. The students have been advised that the city and county and state are the largest employers in our area.

Later in the semester a local organic farmer will speak about clean food production as an entrepreneurial option.

I hope to continue these activities and add new programs too. Your training will be used to help enrich the learning experience.

I will keep you posted as we move forward.

Catherine, I have recently moved to a small island on the west coast of Canada. I have a garden etc. w my wife. I am working my way through Dr.Farrell's books. What three books (or more) would you recommend that a person read in order to self educate for the times that are here and coming. Thank you

Dear Catherine Austin Fitts,

Thank you for your interview with Rachael L. McIntosh and Rob Ossell of www.shadowcitizen.

In the interview you mention helping a friend to get rid of diabetes, with a DVD.

Would you be so kind as to direct me to this purchase, to this method?

SIMPLY RAW – Arizona Clinic – found local

Hi Catherine, Would you talk a bit about the practical legalities of investing in a local business? An innovative group here, Austin Foodshed Investors, has been coaching and educating small producers in the local foodspace, helping them with business plans, and connecting them to appropriate sources of capital, so they're ready for it, and use it well. They have helped deploy over $1M now in local businesses. <http://www.austinfoodshedinvestors.org/> I notice they only entertain 'accredited' investors. That sounds like they are navigating a legal landscape, and it effectively eliminates me from participating as an investor. Our Solari group has tentatively agreed that we would like to materially invest in a local business. I know a couple who passionately wants to farm. They maintain a consistent presence at farmers markets throughout the area. They appear to me to be the most committed and likely to succeed, of the few dozen starting farmers I've talked to. How would our Solari group prepare legally, to consider investing in this couple's enterprise? Thanks, Jim

Hi Catherine, I am a member of a small family office. We have a lot of oil and gas interests with emphasis in Permian basin. We also invest quite a bit in several real estate product types in Texas virgins and Phoenix. We also direct lend on real estate. We have 4 percent invested in mining equities and pm. We are 50 percent cash after taxes. I am working to find a home for 20%. Hope to hear from you

Hi Catherine,

I've enjoyed the last two conversations with Dolan & Kirby on the ESF. I was wondering if you can you share your thoughts on how (or if) Dark Pools are or may be used by the ESF to limit transparency?

It seems to me that they have to be – have found very little reliable information on the dark pools. – welcome any recommendations.

I'm also very much interested with Rob Kirby's take on this, if you could share it with him as a topic in the upcoming conversation on Interest Rate Swaps.

Thank for your brilliant conversations!

Kind Regards,

PS. I'm looking forward to the Pasadena lunch. :)
